Dear New York City Principal,

I am writing this letter to inform you that School Leaders Network (SLN) is a sole source provider in New York City.

SLN is the only professional organization that provides professional networks to principals and assistant principals across the city. Our research shows that there are no other principal networks that meet monthly with a professional facilitator and engage in collaborative coaching, an inquiry model and instructional rounds as a way of solving learning and teaching challenges. While other organizations provide various forms of coaching, School Leaders Network has created principal networks for over 135 participating principals driving outstanding student-level results for high-need students across the city. SLN is the only organization that uses principal networks and a research-based model to transform education in New York City through exceptional teacher and principal leadership.

Should you have any questions about the sole source provider, School Leaders Network, please email me at eneale@connectleadsucceed.org.

Sincerely,
